CURRICULUM & TEACHERS' GUIDES
GRADES 7-9

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We would like to acknowledge the contributions made by following people in the initiation, planning and preparation of Teachers’ Guide:

- Miss Isoline Reid, ACEO, Core Curriculum Unit, and present National Director of the ROSE Secretariat.

- Ministry of Education Officers/Writers/Editors in the Core Curriculum Unit:
  Miss Grace V. Peart, Religious Education Officer; Mrs. Phyllis Reynolds, former S.E.O., Cultural Studies and present Acting ACEO, Core Curriculum Unit;
  Ms. Hilary Gooden, Education Officer, Languages Section.

- The Clerical Staff of the Core Curriculum Unit, particularly Miss Terry Sinclair and Miss Mitzie Moore, (as well Miss Julie Bepat, and Miss Angella Howard), who have assisted in the typing and reproduction of material.

- Local Consultants/Writers:
  Rev. Dr. Ambrose Finlay, former Dean of Studies, United Theological College of the West Indies and present lecturer at the Institute of Education, U.W.I.
  Mrs. Majorie Vassell, former S.E.O., Core Curriculum Unit.
  Sr. Norma Thompson, of Church Teachers’ College and the Education and Youth Dept., Anglican Diocese of Jamaica.
  Mrs. Dawn Buckland-James, Vice Principal, Priory School.
  Rev. Horace Roberts, Managing Director, Creative Services Limited.

We would also like to acknowledge the contributions made by the following people in the initiation, planning and preparation of the Curriculum Guide herewith included:

- Mrs. Lola Williams, former ACEO, Core Curriculum Unit, who facilitated the whole curriculum development process.

- Mrs. Janet Johnson, former educator, World Bank IV Project and former ACEO, Core Curriculum Unit.

- Miss Isoline Reid, then ACEO, Core Curriculum Unit.

- The Religious Education Board of Studies of the Joint Board of Teacher Education; other Religious Education teacher trainers from the colleges; and the wider group of teachers from across the island, who attended workshops and assisted in identifying some of the topics placed in the curriculum.

- Officers of the Ministry of Education/ Writers in the Core Curriculum Unit:
  Miss Grace V. Peart, Religious Education Officer; Mrs. Phyllis Reynolds, then S.E.O., Cultural Studies; Mrs. Majorie Vassell (then S.E.O);
Mrs. Laurel Nembhard; Miss Cherry Davis; Miss Joan Higgins and Mrs. Nolma Coley-Agard (then Coley) Rev. Stephen Jackson, Mr. Derrick Hall.

- The Administrative Staff of the Curriculum Unit and Miss Charmaine Hall then secretary in the Language Arts Component, who assisted in the preparation of material.

- Local Consultants/Writers:
  - Mrs. Valorie Tinglin, Bethlehem Teachers' College
  - Miss Rose Spalding, former S.E.O./Religious Education Officer, Core Curriculum Unit
  - Mrs Lucinda Peart, Bethlehem Teachers' College
  - Rev. Ellen Thomas, United Church in Jamaica & The Cayman Islands
  - Rev. Dr. Ambrose Finlay, United Theological College of the West Indies
  - Rev. Marjorie Lewis-Cooper, Jamaica Council of Churches

  Special thanks to Sr. Norma Thompson, Education and Youth Dept., Anglican Diocese of Jamaica, for the pivotal role played in helping to formulate the foundation document which was later expanded; also for her invaluable contribution to the revised draft.

- Reviewers:
  - Rev. Dr. The Hon. Rambauth Dale Busnauth, Senior Minister of Education and Cultural Development, Guyana
  - Rev. Dr. George Mulrain, United Theological College of the West Indies, Mona
  - Mrs. Rosemarie Vemon, Alpha Primary School
  - Sheikh Musa Tijani, Islamic Council of Jamaica
  - Dr. Monica Brown, Institute of Education, U.W.I., Mona
  - Senior Education Officers of the Core Curriculum Unit
  - Rev. Dr. Burchell Taylor, Bethel Baptist Church
  - Rev. Stotrell Lowe, Mico Teachers' College
  - Deaconess Grace Jervis, Education and Youth Department, Anglican Diocese of Jamaica
  - Dr. Randolph Watson, Bethlehem Teachers' College
  - Dr. Josette Smikle, Bethlehem Teachers' College
  - Rev. Justin Peart, Bethlehem Moravian/Church Teachers' College
  - Miss I. Robinson, Bethlehem Moravian College Secretariat

STATEMENT FROM THE MINISTER OF EDUCATION AND CULTURE

For some time now, there have been three major concerns about secondary education in all schools. These concerns are – the quality of the programmes offered, access to these programmes and the inequities in the system. Consequently, the government made the decision to embark on the Reform of Secondary Education (ROSE) in order to address these issues. At the centre of the reform is the development of a common curriculum and its implementation in all institutions offering grade 7-9 programmes.

It will not be easy to provide a uniform, high quality programme. There are some schools in which the transition will not be difficult, but these are in the minority. The greatest challenge we face is in the All Age schools where the largest group with the fewest opportunities is to be found.

It is important to remember that the new Junior High programme does not mean a new school building. Some buildings will be needed, and quite a bit of renovation in many schools, but the real change is in the curriculum to which the students will be exposed and in the examinations they will write.

The Ministry of Education and Culture will try to provide greater equity of support to each school, but support by the community with words, work, materials and funds will be greatly appreciated as a major contribution to the national effort. It is accepted that the Ministry cannot be the sole provider, totally responsible for the operations of schools.

The School Board for each school is expected to play a major role when a Junior High programme is started. The active involvement of the Board will hasten the implementation of the Junior High programme in a school. Each school must meet the requirements of the new programme – teachers trained to deliver the curriculum, necessary buildings and equipment and supplies. The Ministry of Education and Culture wishes to enlist the support of the Private Sector and other members of the local community, in the provision of some of these requirements, so that the triple goals of quality, access and equity in education can become a reality.

I urge all of you who are concerned with the education of our young people to help in this secondary reform programme.

STATEMENT FROM THE PERMANENT SECRETARY

During the four-year preparation period for the Reform of Secondary Education, a national curriculum was developed and piloted (in 1991) in four All Age schools. This piloting was extended in 1992 to an additional seven institutions, which included All Age, Secondary and High schools. In 1993, fourteen All Age and ten Secondary schools were selected to join the programme. An additional ten schools were taken on board on a voluntary basis. Because of the comprehensive nature of the reform, it is phased over approximately fifteen years.

During the five years which constituted the first phase of the ROSE programme, (1993-1998) the Ministry selected fifty All Age schools and twenty-two Secondary schools for entry into the Junior High programme. By the end of this five-year period, a study on the Senior High School system was conducted, and the findings and recommendations are being used to inform the Ministry on the directions to take in respect of this level of the reform programme.

To complement the Ministry’s efforts during the first phase, scope was provided for schools to request the programme before the Ministry’s planned implementation date. Principals and teachers from schools which made this request were given training and provided with curriculum and teachers’ guides.

The training of Education Officers, Principals and Teachers is a major focus of the Junior High programme. Through a joint Ministry of Education and Culture/Joint Board of Teacher Education programme, intensive in-service training was conducted for the Principal and for teachers of grades 7-9 in each selected school. Training will continue to take place as the Ministry prepares to introduce the documents to all schools with Grades 7-9, for the 2000-2001 academic year. The Education Officer has a key role to play in communicating the Ministry’s reform policy locally, and in supervising the implementation of the Junior High Programme.

The Ministry of Education and Culture looks forward to the support of the Private Sector, Board Members, Principals, Teachers and Education Officers who are central to the success of the Reform of Secondary Education.

Together, we can make it happen!

Mrs. Marguerite Bowie
Permanent Secretary
STATEMENT FROM THE CHIEF EDUCATION OFFICER

Proposals for the reform of secondary education have been on the agenda for the past several years. Regrettably, during this period, there has been a fall in education quality exemplified by over-all declining performances of secondary school students in internal and external examinations. A decrease in the allocation and use of instructional materials and equipment and a downward trend in the retention and supply of adequately and appropriately qualified teachers have also characterised the period. Not the least, have been growing discrepancies in the allocation of resources to the different types of schools. These circumstances have given rise to a multipartite system of secondary education which has tended to be inefficient and ineffective in a large measure.

Happily, the time for action to reverse the negative trends has arrived. In the school year 1993/94 a bold attempt was made through the Reform of Secondary Education Project to unify secondary education and to make it more relevant, effective and efficient. A Junior High School programme, which has as its cornerstone a good quality core curriculum, has been installed at Grades 7-9 of all secondary level school types over a period of fifteen to twenty years. The major thrust of the project is to increase access and equity, and to improve quality in terms of the teaching / learning environment which will further result in higher student gain in cognitive knowledge, skills and values. Undoubtedly, a strong commitment is required of students, teachers, parents, education officers, school boards and communities to work cooperatively and diligently to improve educational quality to each school with the installation of the Junior High School programme.

It may be well to point out here that quality, and access to it, begins at the unit of the classroom. Here, students and teachers seek to interact constructively with instructional material and equipment. A culture of cooperative learning and excellence in achievement is defined and developed. A curiosity and questioning of the what, why and how of everything of significance become characteristic of the classroom environment; and the place of reading, information sharing and discussion assumes prominence. Each student is guided to realize his/her full potential and is prepared for the next stage of education.

I urge everyone, particularly school boards, principals and teachers to commit themselves to action to make this long awaited project a signal of success. Indeed, the project promises, and the students need a good quality secondary education. Our country, too, requires urgently a sound secondary education system. It seems to me, that it is in our power to contribute decisively to these needs and requirements.

I summon all to action.

STATEMENT FROM THE CURRICULUM DEVELOPERS

The curriculum and teachers' guides which set out the new curriculum for students in Grades 7-9, have been prepared by the Ministry of Education and Culture as the principal documents to guide and ensure the delivery of quality education to all secondary school students in Jamaica. This curriculum is known as the Common Curriculum, since it will eventually be implemented in all types of secondary institutions. The guides represent the national requirements in the subjects of Career Education, Language Arts, Mathematics, Resource & Technology, Science and Social Studies, Visual Arts, Drama, Guidance, Music, Religious Education, Physical Education/Dance and Spanish.

The introduction of Career Education as part of the Guidance and Counselling programme offering, will increase students' understanding of their career options. It will also make demands on teachers and administrators, as it is to be infused into the other subjects to be taught.

Resource and Technology is a composite subject derived from the traditional Technical and Vocational offerings. The subject emphasizes the application of scientific knowledge and principles to the solution of practical problems. This course will lay a foundation for technical education and training at the upper secondary level.

Some innovations in this national lower secondary curriculum are: "Language across the curriculum", "Mathematics for the real world", a greater emphasis on subject integration and recognition of the Aesthetics as subjects in their own right, as well as vehicles for curriculum delivery. These innovations require teachers to adopt methodologies such as co-operative learning, multilevel teaching and use of the Drama modes. Common planning time for teachers is an essential feature of the programme.

Teachers should avail themselves of all the help and suggestions made in the teachers' guides, to enable them to master the changes in methodology. The trend in all subjects is towards a more student-centered, less teacher-dominated approach, and it is expected that both teachers and students will benefit from this change. Finally, it is hoped that teachers, students and planners will, through trial and exploration, work out the most successful ways of tapping the energies and releasing the creativity of all our young people.

With very best wishes,

Miss Isolene Reid, ACEO, Core Curriculum Unit
(1996 - 1999)

Mr. Arlie Dyer, ACEO, Technical and Vocational Unit

Mrs. Phyllis Reynolds, ACEO Core Curriculum Unit
(1999 - present)

Dr. Deloris Brissett, ACEO, Guidance & Counselling Unit
OVERALL AIMS OF THE WHOLE CURRICULUM

Background

In Jamaica’s Five Year Independence Plan (1963-68) the Government’s aim for education was expressed as follows:

The Government affirms its belief in education not only for its inestimable social value in enabling every individual, for his own sake, to develop his personality and his talents to the fullest extent, but equally that each individual might be enabled to make a maximum contribution to society in every respect.¹

This aim was translated into policy in the 1966 New Deal for Education. Among its goals was that of:

Gearing the education of children in the age-group 12-15 so that a greater percentage of pupils would be able to continue formal education – academic, vocational or technical – and benefit from that education, while those who do not will be better able to service Jamaica’s manpower needs.²

The Junior Secondary Schools built under this programme were to provide:

1. Opportunities for all pupils to progress according to attainment, aptitude and ability.

2. A wide range of subjects which will stress the basic subjects while exposing all pupils to a variety of practical subjects. (It is felt that it is essential that each pupil by the age of 15 should have a good groundwork in the use of English as a communication skill and be able to do the calculations necessary to hold his or her own in everyday life (...). The practical subjects are thought to be necessary as a part of physical development and to give young people an appreciation for the use of tools and to help overcome the phobia which many people have for activities which involve the use of the hand.)³

3. Opportunities for the proper development of those children who will go on to the secondary cycle of secondary education while providing opportunities for pre-vocational education for those who will not continue formal education but who will expect to be acceptable to employers for employment and training.

¹ Five Year Independence Plan (1963-68: a long term development plan for Jamaica, Chapter 17 – Ministry of Education and Culture
² Idem
³ Idem
In 1983, a UNESCO team reported on the status of secondary education in Jamaica and identified major issues to be resolved. The team recommended a restructuring and rationalization of secondary education, centered on the provision of a common core curriculum for all students in Grades 7-9. Virtually all students in Grades 7-9 would have access to the same programme. The standard national curriculum would guarantee:

the appropriate uniform level of knowledge in social subjects including language and arts, in mathematics and science. (...) There would be an introduction to practical work and industrial arts⁴.

Aims

Education Programme Preparation Project (World Bank IV) (1989-92)

The study, The Reform of Secondary Education which informs the curriculum development component of this project, defines a common curriculum as follows:⁵

A common curriculum is a plan of learning for all children in terms of content, goals and learning experiences; but it must allow for students of different levels of readiness to learn differently and at different rates. In effect, a common curriculum provides all children with the same basic subject matter, but it allows for children with different levels of readiness and ability to proceed at different rates of learning.

The Study justifies provision of a common curriculum for Grades 7-9:

Three specific objectives are: to achieve greater equity is the secondary school system to Grade 9, to improve the quality of learning, and to enhance individual productivity.

EQUITY: The most serious flaw in Jamaican secondary education in lack of equity. Children have unequal access to opportunities for learning. Some schools are more effective than others, partly because of the different resources and in the use of those resources to provide quality education.

The provision of a common curriculum - along with supporting implementation measures - is recommended as one of the most likely methods of achieving equity in basic educational opportunities.

⁴ Ibid.
QUALITY: Providing equal access to education is one thing; providing equal access to quality education is another. There is a serious need for a general improvement in teaching.

By the end of Grade 9, adolescents need to have the basics of quality education: literacy, numeracy and enough related knowledge, skills and attitudes to cope with their environment. The objectives of the common curriculum should help to realise these goals.

PRODUCTIVITY: The third objective of a common curriculum is to enable Jamaican students to be productive citizens, whether they continue their academic education, enter technical or vocational training, or enter the world of work. Every child needs a minimum set of cognitive competencies to be productive; and when the majority of students acquire them they will be trainable in the more complex job skills required in today’s workforce.

A basic education of nine years is essential if the majority of Jamaicans are to assume professional, skilled or semi-skilled positions, and if they are to have the capacity to acquire more education or training.

The New Curriculum

The curriculum development component of the World Bank IV Project represents the first step in the development of such a common curriculum for students in the first cycle of secondary education (Grade 7-9).

The new curriculum will provide students with opportunities to experience a broad programme as a foundation for life, for further education and for employment. In the short-term it will:

* build on the knowledge, skills and attitudes acquired in primary school
* include a balance of academic and prevocational studies
* include a programme of remediation in literacy and numeracy
* lay the foundation for further study and for employment
* increase students’ opportunities for enrichment and fulfilment
* enhance students’ abilities to make choices that affect the quality and direction of their lives.

Features of the New Curriculum

The new curriculum is designed to be:

* Responsive: developed in response to national goals and student needs, by teams of teachers, Education Officers and specialists (Jamaican and international consultants).
- Broad and balanced: centred around five core subjects (Language Arts; Mathematics; Resource & Technology; Science; Social Studies) plus Career Education. (The Curriculum Framework is shown on page xii)

- Multi-level: (there are three levels: Foundation 1 and 2; Normative and Enrichment). While the content will be similar for all students, activities will vary, to match the stages of development of the students in the class.

- Articulated: building on the primary school curriculum for Grades 1-6; preparing students for work or for CXC and other examination courses in Grades 10-11.

- Differentiated: certificates will reflect what each student has achieved.

- Socially responsible: students will work in collaboration with others and take on responsibility for their own learning.

Long Term Objectives

The new curriculum will eventually provide for additional subjects, some optional areas of study, clearly defined achievement levels and a final certificate based on statements of students' achievements.
Language is central to the whole curriculum process. Oral and written language are both essential to the thinking process which must take place in all areas of the curriculum.

John Carol, (1974) states that:

"the various forms of pictorial expressions are almost always accompanied by language and require language to make them intelligible".

Piaget, (1974) has written that:

"language is but one among...the many aspects of the semiotic functions even though it is, in most instances, the most important one".

Even highly abstract processes in Mathematics and psychomotor activities use the medium not only in describing the techniques and processes but also in invoking responses.

The student who is articulate in oral and written language, who can use words to manipulate ideas, to shape thoughts and to understand key concepts, has an indispensable tool for all school learning because the ability to communicate through language is a necessary skill in all subject areas.

But what do we mean by "language across the curriculum"? It certainly does not mean that each subject teacher must take responsibility for teaching sentence structure, grammar and composition skills in the subject areas. Rather, language across the curriculum is "verbalization as the fulfillment of understanding within each subject area". Thaiss, (1984). This involves such factors as:

Students (in all subject areas)
- using writing to order and classify thoughts
- learning the language appropriate to the subject
- using with increasing precision the vocabulary of their subject;

Teachers (in all subject areas)
- modelling the language of their subject
- attending to the conventions of written language
- becoming sensitive to the role and varieties of language learning.
The following learning skills which are traditionally regarded as the purview of the language teacher are shared by all subjects in the curriculum.

(1) Locating information - using encyclopaedias and reference books and gathering facts from field trips and interviews.

(2) Organising information - outlining and categorising

(3) Acquiring information through reading - using strategies such as skimming and scanning and understanding the importance of pre-reading strategies.

(4) Acquiring information listening and observing - setting purpose for listening and observing

(5) Communicating orally and in writing - speaking with accuracy and poise, writing with clarity and exactness, using the writing process.

(6) Interpreting pictures, charts, graphs, tables, cartoons. - constructing simple graphs, tables and other pictorial materials including cartoons

(7) Evaluating and applying information. - applying problem solving and critical thinking skills.

Each subject area has its special needs although there are many held in common across the curriculum. The subject teacher needs to be aware of this and should provide learning situations which will foster the development and use of appropriate language.
Career Education Across The Curriculum

Career development is a life-long process which begins in the home, is nurtured throughout school life and is manifested in adult career choices.

Individuals progress through three stages of career development:

1. Awareness which begins with self and career awareness.

2. Exploration which engages youngsters in activities to explore their own interests, abilities and values as well as explore careers, and

3. Preparation which builds upon the totality of experiences and learning as the youngster prepares to succeed in a meaningful and satisfying career.

It is the responsibility of educators to guide this process by providing appropriate support and experiences to assist students through all the stages. In particular, educators should:

a) expose all students to, and encourage them to explore non-traditional careers regardless of sex, race or ethnic background;

b) help students develop positive attitudes towards work; and

c) prepare students for careers that are realistic and satisfying.

Career development education is not a school subject. It must be seen as:

(i) the link that joins career development learning with world of work earning, and

(ii) the tool that prepares students to make realistic career decisions as they acquire new experiences, values and goals.

It must be based on student needs, must employ a team approach to teaching and learning and must include the infusion of Career Education elements into the entire curriculum.
The process of infusion involves:

(a) the recognition/identification of the many Career Education concepts that are similar to those in other subject areas;

(b) the purposeful linking of the common concepts and/or areas of content identified at (a) so that they are not taught in isolation. Rather, there should be such constant cross-referencing amongst subjects that students perceive the common concepts as comprising necessary insights and information without which their education would be incomplete;

(c) the use of methodologies and activities which ensure the development of skills and attitudes which appear in all subject areas in ways that demonstrate the relevance of these learnings and experiences to career choices.

The management of the process is important. Leadership must come from the Guidance Counsellor and/or Career Education Co-ordinator, but all staff members need to familiarize themselves with the main objectives of the Career Education programme and to plan together for its effective implementation.
INTRODUCTION

The Teachers' Guide included herein aims to assist the teacher in the implementation of the curriculum. It is a supplement to the Curriculum Guide, which is the legal document addressing the teaching of Religious Education at the Grade 7-9 levels.

The Teachers' Guide addresses not only the scope and sequence of the subject, but also gives valuable information concerning the:

- Nature of Religion
- Rationale for Teaching the Subject
- Aims and Objectives of the Subject
- Role and Function of Religious Education Teacher
- Ethical Issues Relating to the Subject
- Teaching of Human Values
- Definition of the Concepts Contained Within Each Theme

The Scope and Sequence is set out in themes with units and topics for each term and for each grade level. Each unit deals with a topic. It addresses the following:

1. Concepts
2. Content
3. Specific Objectives under the headings: Knowledge, Skills and Attitudes.
4. Suggested Learning Activities
5. Suggest Teacher Activities
6. Assessment (tools and techniques)
7. Possible Infusion with Other Subjects

The time suggested for each Unit is based on an allocation of at least two (2) forty-minute periods per week. It is expected that the teacher will do a further breakdown of each Unit (as outlined) into actual lesson plans. Some suggestions are given as to how this can be accomplished.

It must constantly be borne in mind that this document is a guide, and as such, its purpose is to point in the direction of its target or goal by suggesting ways of achieving learning outcomes. The teacher, therefore, is expected to make modification where these will facilitate the students' learning.

Guidelines are provided for taking students on field trips and for observing and recording students' behaviour and/or performance in class.
THE NATURE OF RELIGION

At the very heart of any religion are the concepts of recognising and relating to deity: that is, to a Being or state of being considered to be supreme, and/or to deities thought to have powers greater than those of humankind.

Wherever humans have lived, their basic religious needs have remained the same:

1. Strength to bear the challenges of life
2. Protection for survival
3. Assurance when in doubt
4. Faith to guide one's conscience
5. Strength of conviction and courage to face the challenges of life
6. Guidance and support when coping with negative emotions
7. The urge to revere: to show the highest regard and admiration for something or someone about which they stand in awe.

There is also the need for the individual to make decisions in a moral and social context. However, religions do not only involve morals or the making of ethical decisions. They are about a person's entire lifestyle: about quality of life and values and about spiritual stamina. They are also about the need to live and worship harmoniously in community.

Various patterns or systems of belief have developed over the centuries to help to meet people's needs in relation to their daily experiences. The oldest and/or the most well-established of the religions are described as traditional belief systems.

However, whatever form religion has taken since its earliest existence, in essence its main function is – through worship and lifestyle – to help humankind cope with that nebulous reality that transcends the realm of normal human experience.
Experience teaches us that there is no one single variety of each of the religious traditions known to humankind. If we take the singular label “Christianity” we will realise that there are in fact a great number of varieties of Christianity, and there are some movements that cause us to have doubts as to whether or not they may be considered Christian.

Each religion is found in many countries, and each permeates and has been permeated by the cultures of the regions in which it is found. This adds to the richness of the faith. Sometimes the expression of the faith in a particular culture bears little resemblance to the original tradition. In trying, therefore, to define religion, we have to deal not only with traditions, but with what might be called ‘subtraditions’. In places like the Caribbean we have to deal with certain elements that have been retained from the religion of our fore-parents who came to the region from Europe, Africa, Asia and other places. The meeting of different traditions and cultures often produces new religious movements.

Despite the difficulty one encounters in trying to define the concept, it is possible to identify certain aspects of ‘dimensions’ that are present in some degree in all major religious traditions, and are also evident in some of the sub-traditions. These dimensions will help us to understand something of the nature or character of a religion.
Ninian Smart lists these dimensions as follows:

1. THE ETHICAL AND RITUAL DIMENSION: This includes such practices as regular worship, preaching, prayer etc. In the Christian religion these practices are prominent. The ancient Jewish tradition of the Temple was preoccupied with the ritual of sacrifice. Sacrificial rituals are important among Brahmin forms of the Hindu tradition. Practices such as yoga in the Buddhist and Hindu traditions may also be considered rituals. Similar examples can be found in other religions.

2. THE EXPERIENTIAL AND EMOTIONAL DIMENSION: This is the 'feeling' side of any religion. Religious history is awash with the enormous vitality and significance of experience as an agent in the formation and development of religious traditions. Examples include the visions of Muhammad, the conversion of Paul, the enlightenment of the Buddha. Emotions and experiences of men and women are food on which the other dimensions of religion feed.

3. THE NARRATIVE OR MYTHIC DIMENSION: This is the 'story' side of a religion. It is typical of all religious faiths to hand down vital stories - some historical, some prophetic, some about heroes and saints, some about great founders such as Moses, Buddha, Jesus, and Muhammad. Such stories - originally based upon long oral traditions - are often enshrined in the sacred writings (scriptures) of these religions. Stories in religion are tightly integrated into the ritual dimension. The Christian communion service commemorates the story of the Last Supper. The Jewish Passover ceremonies commemorate events of the Exodus from Egypt. As Jews share the meal they retrace the story.
4. THE DOCTRINAL AND PHILOSOPHICAL DIMENSION: The doctrinal dimension underpins the narrative dimension. For example, in the Christian tradition the story of Jesus’ life and the ritual of the communion service led to attempts to analyse the nature of the Divine Being in order to preserve both the idea of the incarnation (God in human flesh) and the belief in one God. This led to the formation of the doctrine of the Trinity in which God is expressed as three ‘persons’ in one ‘substance’. Every religious tradition or sub-tradition has its body of instruction, its dogma. In Islam the single most important teaching is the unity of God, who is the creator of the universe. In the Hindu religion we can cite the doctrine of reincarnation among others.

5. THE ETHICAL AND LEGAL DIMENSION: This is the law which a religious tradition or sub-tradition incorporates into its fabric. In Buddhism there are certain binding precepts - known as the five precepts or virtues - which together with other rules and regulations control the lives of the monks, nuns and monastic communities. In Judaism there are not only Ten Commandments, but also a complex of over six hundred more rules laid out for His people by Yahweh. In Islam there is the law or Shari’ah which has a central place in the history of the religion. Islamic law shapes an Islamic society religiously, politically and morally. The central ethical attitude in Christianity is love, as depicted in the life of Jesus himself and in his injunctions to his followers. The Ten Commandments and Christian ethics have combined to shape the laws and values of Western civilisation.
6. THE SOCIAL AND INSTITUTIONAL DIMENSION: To understand a faith we need to see how it works among people. Every religious movement is embodied in a group of people. The group goes by different names in different religions e.g. church, congregation, Sangha umma. There is a variety of relations between organized religions and society. A faith may be the official religion of the land, or it may be just one of several religions, or it may be somewhat cut off from social life as a sect or cult. The social dimension of a religion includes the mass of persons involved in it – not only outstanding persons but also lesser-known individuals who contribute in their own ways to the development of the character of the religion.

7. THE MATERIAL DIMENSION: The social dimension invariably finds tangible expression in material form – buildings, artwork, other symbols and figures often very elaborate and highly important in the spiritual lives of the adherents e.g. the ikons of Eastern Orthodox Christianity, the many statues of the gods and goddesses in Hinduism. Also important in this dimension are sacred landmarks, geographic origins of the religions etc., e.g. the river Ganges, Jerusalem, the sacred mountains of China, Mt. Sinai.

These seven dimensions help to characterise religions as they exist in the world.¹

¹Smart, Ninian. The World’s Religions; Cambridge University Press, 1992
VISION STATEMENT FOR THE TEACHING OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Students completing the study of Primary and/or Secondary level Religious Education should have achieved an appropriate level of academic, moral and spiritual development, based on a realistic understanding of deity in relation to themselves, other human beings and the rest of Creation. They should be willing to examine and exhibit an appreciation for beliefs and practices other than their own and/or those with which they may be familiar, and so begin to interpret the activities of both the dominant and the other religious groups around them in the context of balanced and accurate information.

Religious Education should also provide students with the tools which will help them to explore fundamental questions about life’s meaning and purpose, examine how different religions grapple with these questions, build on their own natural sense of awe about spiritual matters, and begin to decide on their own stance concerning religion. This will help them in developing a sense of their own worth, as well as in the making of wise everyday choices.

Ultimately, Religious Education should develop in students a sensitivity to spiritual, social and ethical issues, accompanied by an awareness of the various ways in which religious belief can be expressed individually and in a faith community. It should also help them to appreciate the importance of commitment to moral and/or religious principles. Finally, it should help students to understand how this commitment can lead not only to their own enrichment, but to the betterment of their country and of the world.
The use of the term "Religious Education" to describe the teaching of religion and religious concepts in schools is relatively new. Previous titles used in Britain and in Commonwealth countries, including Jamaica, were: Religious Instruction, Bible Knowledge, Religious Knowledge and Christian Life Education. The curriculum based on the titles focused on the Bible and instruction in the Christian Faith.

The new title embodies an approach which results partly from new insights into education and partly from changes in society. Such changes include a recognition of the fact that in the world today there are many other religions - as well as secular alternatives - with which people regularly come into contact through local, national and international cross-cultural fertilization.

It is difficult to give a brief definition of Religious Education, as it encompasses and addresses issues and realities which exist in all areas of human experience. It is therefore best understood if described. Consequently, this segment is an elaboration on the Vision Statement previously outlined - that is, with what the subject seeks to achieve.

The goal of Religious Education is not to alter the radio of persons belonging to these different religious groups. Its aim is not to change what there is but - with as much objectivity as possible to give students a sense of what else there is apart from what they know already.

The content of Religious Education is drawn from:
(a) traditional belief systems
(b) individual patterns of belief
(c) shared human experience

Hence, students examine the origin, development, beliefs and practices of large, small, old, new, indigenous and worldwide religious groups. This is done in an effort to help them understand more clearly how the beliefs and practices of these groups (i.e., their religious heritage) have affected - and still have the power to influence - everyday life and culture. Students explore the nature of religion itself, and in so doing learn to identify the basic components of any religion.

At the core of Religious Education are such renowned civic virtues and moral values as honour, love; forgiveness; honesty; integrity; stewardship; faithfulness; generosity; helpfulness; a sense of responsibility; courage; conviction; justice; respect for others, for Life itself and for the environment; self-worth; freedom and equality.
In conclusion, whereas previous instruction embodied only biblical content and principles, Religious Education accommodates a broadened and balanced perspective that includes other religious beliefs and practices. It utilizes modern approaches such as the existential, the dimensional and the phenomenological approach. These address not only the "who" and "what" of the subject, but also the "why". They lend themselves readily to integration with all other subjects – not only the Arts but also Science and Technology. This makes the subject more relevant, and leaves much room for creativity/self-expression and understanding on the part of both students and teachers. Students are therefore helped to learn not only about religion but from it; that is to "mature in relation to their own patterns of belief and behaviour" as they develop a greater consciousness and understanding of the human community to which they belong.

RATIONAL

Various educators have given the following reasons why the study of religion as a phenomenon, and how it is communicated, is as important as Language, Mathematics or any other subject in the school curriculum.

(a) Public education was founded to teach the forementioned civic virtues and moral values; to shape the civic habits and the hearts of students so that they may enter the wider society with an accurate understanding of what it means to be good and virtuous citizens: the type of citizens that are of the highest moral integrity, and who are needed to build a nation.

(b) Religion has been so much a part of the history of nations and is so much a part of people’s everyday lives that the need to develop a general understanding of it in the course of the school curriculum seems obvious. In the Western World in general, and in Jamaica in particular, religion has had a great influence not only on history but upon culture, laws and literature. This is an influence that should not be ignored or discounted.

(c) "... religious belief has been an inspiration for the greatest achievements in art, poetry, music, architecture etc. Religion is an enormous creative power. In every age it changes its forms of appearance". Students should therefore not be denied access to such an enriching influence.

"... the understanding of religion as a phenomenon involves developing certain perceptive faculties which are not totally represented in any other area of experience at school....whatever one’s own view, religion represents a very wide-spread human activity, both at the personal and collective levels, and there is a need to take care that pupils do not lack the ‘antennae’ to tune into its significance".

It is a fact that "countless evils have been done in the name of religion, ranging from tortures and holy wars to the subjection of outcasts, slaves and women", eg. the existing situations in Northern Ireland and the Middle East. However, it is not true to say that religion is the sole cause of such atrocities, but it does contribute to them.

One of the objectives of Religious Education is to help students understand the passions of religion. Such students are more likely to contribute to peace and harmony in the world.

Largely due to the influence of the public media, there are more explicit and widespread demonstrations of moral decadence, intolerance and other ills in society which may be further traced to a breakdown of the influence of positive traditional family and religious values. Coupled with this fact, adolescence is typically a time of tensions, conflicts and instability. Some students will leave Grade 9 for the wider world. Religious Education offers guiding principles which will enable adolescents to make decisions based upon responsible moral values.

The Religious Education curriculum includes the study of religious and indigenous religious groups present in the "catchment areas" of schools, particularly those with which children come into contact. However, it is not enough to be exposed to the religions practised in one’s own neighbourhood. "We are citizens of the world at a time of steadily increasing mobility and communication, and children need to be helped to prepare for life in a world of very diverse religious commitments”.

"Religions are concerned with the ultimate and external things of life". Though this should by no means be its primary function, Religious Education will also provide pupils with vital information which will help them to decide on their own religious views. The actual practice of religion should always remain in some sense "extracurricular" and schools should always – while encouraging students to develop objectivity, empathy and sympathetic understanding – preserve their neutrality.

Religious Education, therefore, offers students the opportunity to explore, question, seek and discover for themselves. It requires of students the same spirit of enquiry that they bring to other subjects in the school curriculum.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION – A MULTI-LEVEL APPROACH

One of the special features of this Religious Education Curriculum is that it is designed to use a multi-level approach to teaching and learning. This means that it gives recognition to the fact that in any single classroom a teacher has to cope with students who are all the time operating at different levels - academically, socially, and in response to all the experiences and influences that impact upon how they learn.

With this in mind, special care has been taken to ensure that the learning outcomes are realistic and achievable and that the suggested learning activities provide opportunities for the development of a wide range of abilities, attitudes and skills.

Hence the students who are not good readers, while they are being helped to improve their reading, have scope in this curriculum to express themselves and make their contribution in class in other ways. They need not be left behind, but their special abilities may be used to enrich their own learning experiences and those of their classmates.

Suggestions for learning activities are given with each topic/subtopic. The activities are by no means exhaustive, and the teacher should feel free to introduce additional activities as well as modify or adapt the suggestion ones for the benefit of his/her students. Recognition is given to the fact that very many of our students are reading several levels below their actual grade level. The Secondary School Textbook Project (SSTP) has produced curriculum based materials to ensure that reading materials are provided which are at the appropriate level for such students.

In addition to the abovementioned strategies meant to address our multi-level classroom reality, the teacher is encouraged – particularly through lesson planning – to cater to the needs of gifted children, as they are also a reality. The learning activities suggested in the unit plans may be adjusted to a higher level of difficulty where appropriate in order to provide challenge and interest for these children. Their abilities should be used discreetly for peer instruction and observation as well as to enhance group activities. Care should be taken to avoid favouritism and to execute these plans in a way that develops the self worth of both gifted and less competent students.

It is hoped that the teacher will make the best use of the suggestions and support materials provided to enhance his/her delivery of the curriculum.
THE ROLE OF THE RELIGIOUS EDUCATION TEACHER

The teacher's own personal interest and competence is a major factor which is bound to influence the successful teaching of Religious Education. Contrary to the belief held by many that 'any teacher can teach Religious Education', this subject presents peculiar problems which call for specialised training and for dedication to the subject on the part of the teacher.

The teacher of R. E. is first and foremost an educator, and as such will be concerned to encourage students to have an open, critical, unbiased approach to the subject. This approach is based on a willingness on the part of teacher and pupil to raise questions without necessarily arriving at conclusive answers.

The Religious Education teacher is not just one who dispenses information concerning beliefs and practices. The subject transcends the informative. It is necessary for the teacher to be able to guide students into an appreciation of the thoughts and intentions that lie behind religious words and actions.

The Religious Education teacher is objective and impartial. He or she does not present opinions and beliefs as facts. Such a person should know the difference between verifiable facts and matters that remain beyond empirical investigation and truth.

Religious Education should not be used for political or religious indoctrination. Teachers of the subject should not impose particular values and beliefs on children. However, they, along with all other teachers, should support basic educational values and those represented by the school as a whole.

The teacher therefore should:

a) be clear about the nature of the subject and its concerns.

b) recognise that any religion is far more than a belief system

c) begin at first by working within aspects of the subject that are familiar and accurately understood - in other words: start from the known and move to the unknown
d) be more a guide than an authority

e) display a high degree of interest in Religious Education

f) show a high level of interest in the exploration of ultimate questions at his or her level as well as at the pupils’ level

g) present himself / herself as a teacher and not as a preacher. During classes, he or she should never proclaim personal religious conviction in the way that this might be done in a place of worship; rather the teacher should ensure that pupils see anyone’s personal convictions as another set of beliefs, not as indisputable facts

h) guide pupils into exploring and seeking answers to Life’s questions.
OVERALL AIMS OF THE RELIGIOUS EDUCATION CURRICULUM

1. To widen the religious perspective of the Grade 7-9 student locally, regionally and globally through the study of indigenous, Afro-Caribbean and world religions.

2. To help students develop an understanding of, and appreciation for elements and values of the belief systems being studied.

3. To lead students to appreciate the fact that religion can be either a unifying or a divisive influence within society.

4. To lead students to understand that religion can help to form the basis of their own values and belief systems.

5. To create in students an awareness of their freedom of choice with respect to religious beliefs.

6. To develop an awareness that religion is an important element of the culture of any society.

7. To help students develop an awareness and understanding of self in relation to deity, family, community, nation, region and the world.

8. To awaken recognition of the challenge and practical consequences of religious beliefs.

9. To examine seriously or sympathetically the problems which might confront minority religious groups locally, regionally, globally.

10. To articulate insights and motivation provided by religious faith and experience.

11. To examine some of the similarities and differences among some of the beliefs and practices of religious groups and to discover what they mean to those who hold and practice them.

12. To expose students to the rites of passage practised in the religions being studied.

13. To help students understand that there are different approaches to life – eg. religious, scientific, aesthetic and other and that these approaches can exist harmoniously.

14. To enable students to make decisions based upon responsible moral values and principles.

15. To enable students to demonstrate growth in religious insight.
OBJECTIVES FOR GRADES 7 - 9 RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

The units mentioned at the end of each of the following objectives are simply for use as guidance. The teacher will find ample opportunity to apply these objectives elsewhere, in accordance with those listed in the unit plans themselves.

A. KNOWLEDGE

Students should be able to:

1. (I,W,S) Define and use correctly the concepts religion, deity, identity, worship, culture, stewardship, work, commitment and other concepts listed in the units. (7-9)

2. (I) Demonstrate the awareness that every individual is a spiritual being. (7-9)

3. (I) Describe and demonstrate how cultural identity is influenced by religion and family background. (7IV)

4. (W) Demonstrate an awareness of the symbolic in everyday life and religion. (8IV)

5. (W) Identify, describe and explain the significance of various festivals and ceremonies of the different religions being studies. (8I, 8V)

6. (W) Identify and discuss the diversity and common features of worship across the religions under study. (8)

7. (W) Identify and describe places of worship in a various religions and explain the significance of the various physical features within them. (8III)

8. (W) Describe the role, function and significance of worship in religion. (8II)

KEY:

(I) = Identity
(W) = Worship
(S) = Stewardship

Roman Numerals = Units e.g. (7I) = Grade 7 Unit I; 8V = Grade 8 Unit V etc.
9. (W) Examine and appreciate the contribution of Afro-Caribbean leaders to the development of religious thought in the region and the world. (7IV, 8I)

10. (W) List and describe different forms/expressions of worship. (8I)

11. (I,W,S) Identify and discuss various ways in which religious beliefs affect citizenship and governance. (7IV, 8, 9I, 9II)

12. (I,W,S) Develop an understanding of the influence of sacred writings on the everyday life of a people. (7, 8VI, 9I, 9II)

13. (I,S) Develop the awareness that different religions have specific beliefs and practices concerning sharing time, talent and resources with others. (9I, 9II).

14. (I,W,S) Examine the effects of religion on the formation of attitudes, values and beliefs. (7-9)

15. (I,W,S) Use religious and moral principles to analyse situations and make mature decisions about right and wrong. (7I, 7IV, 7V, 8, 9I, 9II)

16. (I, S,) Identify important religious heroes or models and recognise characteristics in the lives of these persons which impact or can impact upon their own lives. (7I, 9I, 8, 9II)

17. (I, S) Be cognisant of the consequences of the use and abuse of their bodies. (7I, 7IV, 9I, 9II)

18. (I) Examine the views different religions hold regarding procreation. (7III)

B. SKILLS

Students should be able to:

1. (I) Demonstrate that they are curious, creative, talented and imaginative human beings. (7I)

2. (I) Analyse and evaluate the influence of religion on people's lifestyles. (7V)

3. (I) Exercise a sense of responsibility regarding the use of their ability to reproduce. (7III)
4. (I) Explore, discuss, outline and compare religious theories pertaining to the origin of life. (7III)

5. (I, W) Engage in an intelligent discussion on the evolution of the religions studied. (7III, 7IV, 8II, 8VII)

6. (I, W, S) Analyse and evaluate contemporary life issues from a religious perspective. (7I, 7III, 8II, 9I, 9II)

7. (I, W) Articulate insights and motivations provided by religious faith and experience. (7I, 8II, 9I, 9II)

8. (I, W, S) Evaluate the role and function of the aesthetics in religion. (7V, 8I)

9. (I, W, S) Make decisions which will lead to responsible, creative and productive use of time, talent and resources. (7-9)

10. (I, W, S) Use religious and moral principles to analyse situations and make mature decisions about right and wrong. (7-9)

C. ATTITUDES

A. Students should be able to:

1. (I) Demonstrate an understanding of self in relation to deity. (7II, 7IV)

2. (I) Show a positive attitude towards their ethnic origins in response to an understanding of themselves as human beings. (7IV)

3. (I, W) Appreciate the influence of religion on human sexuality (i.e., knowing and consciously directing behaviour accordingly. (7I, 7V)

4. (W) Develop as open and unprejudiced an attitude as possible to the beliefs, practices and values of others. (7-9)

5. (I, S) See work as an honourable and noble part of self-actualization. (7I, 9I, 9II)

6. (I, W, S) Develop an appreciation of the fact that they are accountable to self, Creator, and the human community of which they are a part. (7I, 7III, 8I, 9I, 9II)

7. (I, W, S) Demonstrate ethical responsibility by showing qualities of honesty, accountability, and other values in all situations whether they are supervised or unsupervised. (7-9)
8. (I,W,S) Appreciate the fact there is a set of rules and values (usually based on religious principles) which underpins every society, the removal of which will result in the decadence of that society. (7I, 8, 9I, 9II)

9. (I,W,S) Realize that every human being has a conscience, which needs to be exercised in dealing with one's fellow human beings, irrespective of religious persuasion. (7I, 8, 9I, 9II)

10. (I,W,S) Appreciate the fact that the capacity for doing what is good should be cultivated for its own sake without any thought of personal gain. (7I, 9)

11. (S) Show responsibility for and solidarity with the environment which sustains life. (7I, 7V, 9)

12. (I,W,S) Develop an appreciation for the sacredness of life. (7III, 7V, 8, 9II, 9IV)
SKILLS TO BE LEARNT IN GRADES 7 - 9

To learn how to do things is to learn a skill. A skill is defined as the ability to use one's understanding to accomplish a task effectively and readily. This ability is usually acquired after much regular practise and application in differing situations.

Categories of Skills

There are many ways to classify skills that are appreciated for inclusion in the Religious Education curriculum. This Guide focuses on five categories:

♦ Basic Communication Skills
♦ Map and Time Skills
♦ Thinking/Decision Making Skills
♦ Valuing Skills
♦ Participation Skills

The skills are not exclusive to Religious Education. For example, all subject areas need and use thinking skills and basic communication skills, and all teachers should provide opportunities for students to develop these skills whether or not they are primarily taught/introduced in Language classes. Participation, valuing skills and thinking/decision-making skills are greatly emphasised in Religious Education. The expectation is that concentrated effort will be made to develop these skills, and that they will be reinforced in other subject areas, so that students may be able to practise them in a variety of contexts.

The key used in the following table is to be interpreted as follows:

I = Introduce
D = Develop (systematically, in greater depth)
M = Maintain (extend and re-teach where necessary)

The sequencing of these skills is meant as a guide only: teachers know their students best and should be flexible in using it. Moreover, cross-subject planning should reveal the skills that have been introduced in other areas and at what level of difficulty this has been done. This will determine the students' present needs.

R.E. LESSONS SHOULD:

1. Encourage students to ask fundamental questions about themselves, about their social and natural environment and about religion.

2. Integrate R.E concepts with those of other subject areas where possible.

3. Make use of the personal knowledge and experiences, talents, likes and dislikes, interests, and hobbies of students.

4. Make use of everyday-life situations and collective creative expressions of the community/world to instill moral values and explore ethical issues as well as to facilitate a clearer understanding of religious beliefs and practices.

5. Employ the use of audio-visuals/technological advances wherever possible.

6. Encourage frank and honest discussion of and responses to the issues and content being explored.

7. Encourage teacher-student / student-student interaction

8. Supply the tools with which students can make their own ethical decisions as well as develop and/or consolidate their own belief systems.

9. Be objective in the presentation and discussion of content and in handling of student responses.

METHODOLOGIES

The teaching of Religious Education may be greatly enhanced by the use of:

1. Resource persons
2. Field trips/Visits
3. Multimedia
4. Various drama modes/The Arts
5. Case studies
6. Panel discussions
7. Debates
8. Projects/Exhibitions/Displays etc.
9. Interviews
10. The Forum technique
11. Researching/Reporting
12. Journals/Diaries
13. Cooperative group work
14. Observation (in a variety of settings)
15. Peer instruction (one-on-one or small group)
16. Self instruction
17. Poems, folklore, stories
18. Learning centres
19. Lectures (by pupils)
20. Portfolios

The creative teacher is sure to be able to add to this list, which is by no means exhaustive.
Assessment Procedures

Teachers are accountable to students, parents, parents and the school community to ensure that each student makes the most progress possible, given the time and the resources available.

Assessment is useful when it provides feedback to the:
- learners about what they are learning and should be learning
- teacher about each pupil's level of progress
- teacher about his or her effectiveness in helping students achieve stated goals
- teacher who is planning for subsequent instruction.

Types of Assessment

A. Diagnostic – finding out the level of understanding children have at the beginning of a course.
B. Formative – helping to reinforce what students are learning (most important type in R.E.)
C. Summative – finding out what they have learned at the end of a course.

Guidelines for Assessment

The following guidelines provide a framework for systematic assessment of students’ progress and for improving Religious Education programmes:

1. Relate assessment to the goals of instruction.
2. Integrate assessment into the teaching and learning process.
3. Make assessment techniques continuous, including individual lessons.
4. Use a variety of assessment techniques.
5. Use a variety of situations to assess student progress.
6. Assess in a way that facilitates standardization and objectivity.
7. Involve students in the assessment process – they can become self-evaluators.
8. Include teachers’ self-assessment.
10. Include assessment of class/corporate growth in specific areas.
11. Use evaluation results to determine objectives and plan instruction.
12. Share assessment results with students, parents and other school personnel.
Techniques for Assessing Religious Education Objectives

A variety of techniques for assessing Religious Education objectives may be utilized. The following are suggested where traditional, formal assessment is needed. When these are used, assessment of reading and writing is implicit where the decision is taken to administer the test orally. In such cases the teacher must determine how listening and speaking skills will be treated.

Traditional, Formal Assessment Techniques

1. Objective Tests
   - Multiple Choice
   - Matching items
   - True/false items
   - Key lists

2. Short answers

3. Open-ended questions

4. Essay tests

5. Worksheets

Informal Assessment Techniques

In addition, there are useful Informal Assessment Techniques which should be used regularly to complement the others.

In Religious Education, these techniques are absolutely critical, since it is the ongoing assessment of attitudes and “unplanned” behaviour that will give authentic indication of development in moral and religious insight.

1. Teacher Observation
   (a) Use observation schedules for:

   (i) student attitudes/behaviour and performance in classroom activities, e.g. discussion/role playing; interrelationships with peers and teacher, group work.

   (ii) samples of students' work e.g. drawings, models, group reports, projects, portfolios.
(b) Use the following for continuous assessment:

(i) checklists and rating scales to record observation; (e.g. check list with \( A = \) Achievement & \( E = \) Effort instead of use of percentages).

(ii) diaries and logs for anecdotal reports.

(iii) rubrics (grids to assess progress in achievement of objectives and completion of assigned tasks).

2. Students' Self Assessment

(a) Response to questionnaires
(b) Individual and group diaries/journals
(c) Worksheets, oral assessment, artwork, practical presentations
(d) Rubrics constructed by teacher or by teacher and students.

3. Students' Assessment of Teacher

(a) Response to questionnaires
(b) Oral and non-verbal reports

4. Students' Constructive Assessment of their Peers

(a) In class
(b) Around school environs.

5. Student–Teacher Conference

(a) Self assessment by students and teacher
(b) Teacher's assessment of students
(c) Students' assessment of teacher.

6. Student Conference

(a) Student-led discussions including teacher, parents and using diaries, journals, portfolios and teacher's records
(b) Discussion of growth in student's religious insight and the development of student's ideas concerning religion.

Establishing Standards

For consistent grading, the teacher should establish standards by:

(a) linking a range of related test scores to rating scales, rubrics, checklists and anecdotal records on an ongoing basis.

(b) at the end of the year conducting not only an academic test, but an assessment of skills using rating scales and checklists.

THEMES IN THE GRADE 7-9 CURRICULUM

IDENTITY

"Who am I?" This question is at the very core of the concept of identity. According to The Concise Oxford Dictionary, identity is "individuality, personality: [the] condition of being a specified person". It involves the environment in which one has nurtured in the past and in which one presently functions: past and present experiences, thought patterns and behaviour patterns. It involves attitudes. It encompasses every facet of one's being, be it the spiritual, the physical, the emotional, the sexual, the socio-cultural, or the moral/ethical. No two sets of genes or experiences are exactly alike, hence no two people are alike.

In the Caribbean, this uniqueness involves a rich blend of Eastern and Western cultures, religions and ethnic groupings. It has therefore produced a multi-cultural environment in which unusual physical features and varied beliefs, values and practices, are commonplace. It is from this melting-pot that the major religions we practise - as well as our indigenous religious expressions - have emerged.

As Caribbean people we sometimes have difficulty knowing who we are, valuing ourselves, accepting ourselves and our personal worth when there are so many sources from which our heritage has been derived.

The Grade 7 curriculum helps students (who at this stage are very preoccupied with themselves) to explore who they are, using the following categories and basic principles:

Spiritual Self:
Human beings have a strong urge to worship, to exceed themselves, to find meaning and purpose in life, to do homage and show reverence to "One" superior or supreme in power or potential. There is a spiritual element that brings out the finer qualities in human nature, especially as humans relate with each other and to the world of Nature. Ever since the beginning of time, human beings have sought ways to explain in this inexplicable, elusive phenomenon.

Physical Self:
As far as religions are concerned, the physical self is not an accident, but a part of a design by a Supreme Being, however this Being is perceived. All human beings have the spark of the Divine, and this creates a cross-cultural link which spans all religions and locations.

Socio-cultural Self:
This involves social responsibility in a plural/multi-religious context, one's interaction in the home and wider community, the influence of religious practices experienced and/or observed, as well as the influence of religion on social practices and vice versa.
Moral/Ethical Self:
Over the generations, there have been developed in collective human thought certain basic concepts concerning factors that influence the cultivation of conscience in human relationships and personal behaviour. These factors involve a consciousness of such values as honesty, truthfulness, justice, love, conviction, equality, helpfulness, hope, respect, courage, forgiveness, kindness and gratitude. There are different interpretations of the meanings of these concepts in different religions, and they affect human behaviour accordingly.

Sexual Self:
There is remarkable commonality in the views held by most major religions regarding sexual behaviour. The curriculum explores these, along with a young person's sexual development and its attendant responsibilities.

Meaning and purpose in life comes when there is an appropriate balance between all the facets of one's self, the Creator and the environment.

WORSHIP

The word 'worship' has the same root as the word 'worth'. They both derive from the Anglo-Saxon (Old English) word "weorth-scipe" which meant 'giving worth to'. The Concise Oxford Dictionary defines the word as (1) homage or reverence paid to a deity, especially formal service (2) the acts, rites or ceremonies of worship (3) adoration or devotion comparable to religious homage shown towards a person or principle (4) worthiness, merit; recognition given or due to these; honour and respect.

Worship is an essential part of the ritual dimension of any religion and contains certain basic elements which appear in most religions, e.g. prayer, reading of sacred writings, homage to deity, exhortation etc. The place of worship and attitudes in worship are easily identifiable.

Some people require visual aids e.g. art, incense, a certain mode of dress, a rosary, a crucifix, a prayer mat, bell music to create an aura and add depth and meaning and purpose to worship. For some these are not necessary.

Worship can be a personal and private exercise carried out in the privacy of one's home as well as a corporate public act that takes place in one of the many and varied edifices erected for the purpose, e.g. a church, tent, mosque, temple or synagogue. It can also be done in the open air.
STEWARDSHIP

The New Testament Greek work for 'stewardship' - 'oikonomia' - is a combination of two words: 'oikos' which means house; and 'nemein' which means to divide, distribute or apportion. The word 'steward' has come to be used to mean someone entrusted with responsibility and management, e.g. of his/her master's or mistress' household. The Concise Oxford Dictionary gives us several meanings, e.g., an official appointed to keep order or supervise arrangements at a meeting or show or demonstration etc., a person responsible for suppliers of food etc. for a college or club; a person employed to manage another's property. All these definitions imply a sense of responsibility, trust and accountability. They also imply that the person on whom the responsibility is placed possess such qualities as honesty, integrity, industry, loving care for that over which he/she is placed. Stewardship involves all these qualities and more. It involves the steward's understanding of himself/herself in his/her role; it involves a relationship between the steward and the persons or things over which he/she has charge; it involves good work ethics, prudence, sensitivity, faithfulness etc.

Across the religions of the world, adherents have felt that one of their responses to deity within their religion is to acknowledge the various gifts given them, and to be good stewards of those gifts. Emphasis is usually placed on time, talent, money. Hence time is spent in worship or an act of charity; or money spent on good deeds or tithing. But stewardship involves more than these deeds and should concern even those who do not claim to be adherents of any religion. All human beings have a responsibility for the environment and by the very fact of a shared humanity they should feel responsible for one another. So stewardship has to do with the environment, with matters such as social justice, with our being good citizens, with our developing our natural talents, with caring and sharing, with living and letting live, with loving and giving. It should be evident among us in our families, in our institutions and in the wider community. It is personal as well as corporate. Stewardship, rightly undertaken, makes for a better world in which to live.

Some Specific Objectives

Knowledge
- Define and use correctly the concepts listed.
- Be aware that every individual is a spiritual being.
- Recognize that every individual has a need to worship.
- Explain the part that Religious Education plays in satisfying this need.
- Explain what Religious Education is and why it is taught in Jamaican schools.
- Explore ways in which religion influences the life of the individual and the society.
- Identify and explain the various dimensions of a religion as evidenced in everyday life.
- Examine ways in which they are alike or different from others, e.g. physically, morally, and culturally.
- Discuss what they like or dislike about themselves.
- Identify role models and justify their choices.
- Examine ways in which factors such as religion, culture and society affect self.
- Outline the basic views of major world religions and prominent indigenous Jamaican religious groups regarding the physical, spiritual, moral and sociocultural aspects of one's personality.

Skills
- Accurately derive meaning from religious language and make appropriate applications to daily life.
- Ask and answer relevant questions precisely.
- Classify and summarise information concerning dimensions of religion.
- Apply information learned about dimensions of religion to new and concrete situations.
- Work co-operatively in groups.
- Express themselves logically and concisely (orally, visually and in writing.)
- Make comparisons.
- Draw reasoned conclusions.
- Detect bias.
- Distinguish between fact and opinion.
- Make value judgements.
- Present information in a variety of ways.

Attitudes
- Show by their behaviour that they understand the connection between self and deity.
- Show respect for points of view which may be different from those with which they are familiar.
- Show willingness to work in groups.
- Show appreciation for others irrespective of racial, religious or ethnic differences.
- Show appreciation of self as a valuable and unique individual.
- Demonstrate a willingness to critically evaluate self on an on-going basis.

SOME SUGGESTED LEARNING ACTIVITIES

1. Divide into pairs, each having two concepts to discuss and try to define. Concepts are previously by colour coded with matching colours for related concepts. After initial discussions, join related pairs to become fours, then larger groups, which work out a creative way to share their perceptions with the rest of the class.

2. Find additional material for later use in groups which they have formed. (e.g., in portfolios).

3. Make journal entries re impressions formed during class discussions.

4. Pull from a bag flash cards containing statements/scenarios involving cases of individual or corporate responsibility. After describing/defining the nature of each type of responsibility try to categorize the scenarios drawn from the bag. Discuss the accuracy of their efforts and do peer assessment. Add cards to chart with relevant columns.

5. Interview religious leaders within or outside the community (including leaders of indigenous groups) to get their views on the nature of good stewardship.

CONTEMPORARY ETHICAL AND MORAL ISSUES FACING SOCIETIES

The teacher of Religious Education must be cognizant of moral and ethical issues which affect the everyday lives of people in society today. Every religion/religious group has an ethical/moral code which has been developed in response to these issues. It is therefore necessary to identify these, as it is inevitable that students will raise them in one form or another during classes.

Following is a list of many of the issues which may arise:

A. Marriage and Family:

1. Concubinage – Faithful and Otherwise
2. Divorce
3. Child abuse
4. Spousal abuse
5. Physical abuse
6. Verbal abuse
7. Emotional/psychological abuse
8. Sexual abuse/incest
9. Premarital sex/celibacy/chastity
10. Extramarital relationships/Sex
11. Street children/homeless persons
12. Vagrancy
13. Contraception/birth control
14. Inter-religious and arranged marriages
15. Homosexuality, lesbianism, same sex marriages
16. Promiscuity
17. Male/female prostitution
18. Submission of the woman
19. Adoption
   - Should the child know?
   - If so, how and when should the child be told?
   - Treatment of the child
20. Abandoning children
21. Children given away children
22. Infanticide
23. Persons with disabilities

B. Medical Issues:

1. The technology of birth
   - Cloning
   - Test tube babies
   - Artificial insemination
   - Surrogate mothers
   - Fertility pills

2. The actual stage at which human life begins.

3. Abortion
   - Statistics
   - Health risks to mother and surviving child
   - Potential disabilities
   - A woman’s right to choose

4. Organ transplants

5. Donating of limbs and organs to medical research

6. Euthanasia

7. Vivisection, animal rights

8. Sexually transmitted diseases

9. Availability of medical care for the poor

C. The Natural World

1. Global warming/Greenhouse Effect
2. Acid rain
3. Pollution/Radiation/Nuclear waste etc.
4. Rainforests/deforestation
5. Natural Disasters/Disaster preparedness
6. Poaching/Destruction of endangered species
7. Overfishing
8. Business practices and the environment

D. Ethics and Society:

1. Ageism
2. Racism
3. Sexism
4. Marginalization
5. Wealth and poverty/inequity of the distribution of wealth; attendant suffering.
6. Work, wealth, leisure and proper use of time
7. Honesty and dishonesty
8. Crime, violence and punishment/capital punishment
9. War and Peace

Writing a Lesson Plan

The following steps are useful in breaking down a term's work into lesson plans.

1. Examine the Scope and Sequence. Break down a term's work into manageable segments based on the:
   a) number of units and weeks in the term
   b) number of classes per week
   c) length of a class period
   d) capabilities of students.

2. a) Choose a unit and a topic.
   b) Identify a set of general unit aims and objectives to correlate with these (pages 14-18).

3. Examine the content and learning activities of the unit to determine a manageable amount for a 40-minute class. Jot down this information.

4. From the unit, choose related objectives for the lesson and add any others that necessary.

5. Choose related concepts.

6. Choose a title for the lesson based on the above steps.

7. Jot down information from steps 4-6 in note form.

8. Again, examine the content column and learning activities. Outline information to be taught; include brief definitions/descriptions of concepts/key words.

9. Transfer the above information to a blank lesson plan form. (A sample is included in the Appendices.)

10. In the Learning Activities column, scale down or increase difficulty of stated activities and include these to meet the special needs of the challenged and/or the gifted child/children where appropriate.

11. Fill in Teacher Activities, Assessment Strategies, Output and Resources columns based on the Learning Activities column.

12. Cross-check to see that these are aligned with stated aims and objectives.

13. Using the skills and attitudes objectives, list (in the appropriate columns) key words that sum up the focus of the lesson.
